QUARTERLY COMMENT

In Q2, developed markets saw inflation fears ease, but concerns over US rate hikes persisted due to strong labor markets. The US economy improved after resolving its debt ceiling issues, benefiting US equities, especially growth and Artificial Intelligence stocks. In contrast, the Eurozone and the UK struggled with inflation, signaling possible rate hikes ahead. China's market reopening disappointed, impacting commodities like platinum group metals and iron ore, affecting the South African market.

Despite facing challenges like the ongoing electricity crisis and accusations against the ruling government of supplying Russia with arms, South Africa narrowly avoided a recession. However, the local equity market benefited from global economic conditions, resulting in a +1.2% advance in the JSE Capped Swix index. Local bonds experienced a sharp sell-off but recovered to -1.5%, while cash was king with favorable +2.2% returns.

The Rand weakened 6.5% against the dollar, boosting global returns in local currency terms. The Momentum Sustainable Global Equity Fund was the top contributor, achieving a 13% return for the quarter. The Aggressive Fund added +3.96%, bringing one-year returns to 15.20%.
